Ohio Highways Bloody

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio's Fourth of July holiday traffic death toll was off to a tragic beginning today with at least 13 fatalities counted — far ahead of all other states.

It was an ignominious start to a holiday period that ends at midnight Monday. Based on past experience of minimum estimates on traffic deaths it would appear that the Buckeye State's fatalities could set an appalling record.

Last year, with a shorter holiday period when the holiday fell on Saturday, only 11 traffic deaths were counted. But last Memorial Day safety officials were shocked at the 28 fatalities counted over a period such as this one—Friday evening through midnight Monday.

The Associated Press count of deaths began at 6 p. m. Friday. By midnight at least 10 deaths had been recorded—one of the worst beginnings of any weekend the state has experienced.

The National Safety Council estimated Americans will cover more than seven billion road miles and warned that as many as 370 persons might die in traffic mishaps.

Four persons died when their car collided with a tractor-trailer on Ohio 18 west of Wellington in Lorain County. They were Walter Zimmerman, 21, of Lodi; Shirley Kull, about 17, of Chippewa Lake;

Leo Chabot, 22, of Homerville R. D. 1, and Jean Harvey, 17, of Chippewa Lake.

The other fatalities:

Deborah Sue Criswell, 3, of Cincinnati, who was hit by a car there as she ran into the street from behind her mother's auto.

Charles Nakos, 70, of Akron, hit by a truck there as he stood alongside his car.

Aloysius Cordonnier, 18, of Rt. 1, New Carlisle, in a two-car collision at Ohio 71 and a Miami County road 15 miles north of Dayton.

Leon B. Conlisk, 53, of Monroe, Mich., in a two-car crash on a

Fulton County road two miles south of the Michigan state line.

Elmer C. Creager, 40, of Dayton, when his motorcycle struck the rear of another cycle and caromed into an oncoming car on Airway Road in Greene County.

Robert Frank Schmidt, 21, of Norwood, passenger in an auto that crashed on Columbia Road two miles south of Kings Mills in Warren County.

Chester Pastula, 35, of Parma, when his car went out of control as he attempted to pass a semi-trailer and left Interstate 90 in Ashtabula County about four miles east of Ohio 90.

Paul Hickson, 19, of Rt. 1, Ashley (Delaware County), when his auto collided with a freight train at New York Central crossing just south of Galion on U.S. 30-S.

Edward Geidner, 22, of Poland Township in Mahoning County, was killed when a car he was driving hit a tree near Youngstown in heavy fog.

Truman Sure Dem Powwow Is Rigged

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said today he resigned as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention "because I have no desire whatever to be a party to proceedings that are taking on the aspects of a pre-arranged affair."

Truman, in a formal statement released in advance of a press conference, said a convention "which is controlled in advance by one group, and its candidate, leaves the delegates no opportunity for a democratic choice and reduced the convention to a mockery."

"I have always believed that the Democratic party should stand for an open convention and should resist any band wagon that thwarts and stifles a free and deliberate process of this great institution."

In his statement the former President said he wanted to make it clear "that my disappointment at the manner in which some of the backers of Sen. John F. Kennedy have acted involves in no way, in my own mind, the person or qualifications of the senator himself. I think, to a great extent, Senator Kennedy is a victim of circumstances brought on by some of his over-zealous backers which is unfortunate and unfair to him."

Truman, in his formal statement, reiterated his endorsement of Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) for the presidential nomination.

He then added: "We must be absolutely certain that all our good men be properly sized up on the convention floor before the final choice is made."

He mentioned one of them as Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) whom he described as a "man who has grown in skill and esteem in his services to the nation and party."

He mentioned another as former Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut, now a congressman from that state. He described Bowles as "one of our far-seeing and distinguished ambassadors."

Muny Court Is Swamped With 43 Cases

Circleville Municipal Court was swamped with a record 43 traffic violation cases today.

Spokesmen said it probably is the largest number of cases ever to come into court for a 24-hour period. Main reason for the overflow was the State Highway Patrol's traffic control airplane which operated in this area yesterday.

Handling the surge of cases presented some problems for the muny court staff. The patrol aircraft ran into some problems, too.

According to reports the plane made an emergency landing between Route 23 and the Norfolk & Western Railroad yesterday when the pilot reasoned that the craft was not running true to form. Spokesmen said no apparent trouble was found and the plane resumed its patrol flight.

Mrs. Maxine Huron, deputy court clerk, said 23 of the cases were waivers, with drivers posting fine and costs money. The other violators were given citations to appear.

Many additional cases are expected before the long July 4 weekend comes to an end Monday night.

New Census Tabulation Fails To Satisfy Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP)—The U. S. Census Bureau has revised its population total for Cincinnati to 494,855, but city officials don't think that's the right figure, either. Howard Crush, aide to City Manager C. A. Harrell, said Friday private studies by the city indicate the census count has still missed some residents.

The first census report for the city was 481,398, but bureau officials rechecked certain areas. The new figure still is lower than the 503,998 noted in 1950.

'Amber Waves of Grain'

STANDING IN the deep, rich wheat of Pickaway County are a pair of Americans, in love with their land and its people. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Liston, Route 3, are symbolic of the type of citizens who have made this country star-studded. Monday, the country will celebrate the signing of the Declaration of Independence 184 years ago. From small beginnings the United States has grown to unsurpassed strength and unlimited opportunity. Certainly when the fathers dedicated this democracy to God, they couldn't have envisioned the untold wealth and freedoms available in America today . . . with God's help. (Staff Photo)

Little King, Queen Named at Ashville

Royalty, pint-sized, was chosen last night at the opening event of the annual Ashville 4th of July celebration.

Named "Little Miss 4th of July" is Ruth Ann Rocky, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bozman, Ashville. "Little Mister 4th of July" for the coming year will be J. C. Timberlake III, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Timberlake, 119 Wilson Ave.

The two sparkle-eyed youngsters were chosen from a field of 57 girls and 33 boys, after a parade and extensive judging session.

Attendants were chosen for the new junior king and queen. For the girls, first attendant is Sue Braskett, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Braskett, Route 2, Ashville, and second attendant is Sue Glick, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Glick, Route 2, Ashville.

First attendant for the boys is Wade Thomas, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thomas, Circleville, and second attendant is Mark Waites, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Waites, 102 Wilson Ave.

They were chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Maxwell, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Grace, Commercial Point, and Mr. and Mrs. James Kitchen, St. Paul, Minn.

The new Little Miss and Little Mister were crowned by last year's winners, Brenda Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Adams, 415 E. Union St., and Tommy Bechtel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bechtel, Lockbourne Air Force Base.

Each child received a silver dollar for entering the competition. The winners each received a wrist watch, while the girl attendants were given necklaces and the boys identification bracelets.

Harry Margulis, Ashville attorney, was master of ceremonies. While the lengthy judging session was in progress, entertainment was provided by a quartet, "Two by Fours", Chet Peters, Jack Lemon, Richard Cook and Don Flierl.

Meanwhile, the village of Ashville is preparing for a big bathing beauty contest tonight, plus Little League ball games this afternoon and tomorrow, a vesper church service tomorrow evening, 4th of July parade, at 11 a. m. Monday and a fireworks display Monday night to climax the three-day affair.

New Evidence Supports Amelia Earhart Execution

NEW YORK (AP)—New evidence has been reported that Amelia Earhart, the pioneer woman flier who disappeared 23 years ago, may have been executed by the Japanese.

The Columbia Broadcasting System said Friday that she was seen to crash-land off Saipan during her ill-fated flight around the world.

CBS correspondent Don Moseley said a special news team sent to the Pacific island "found at least a dozen natives who remember seeing the famous aviatrix crash land in the water in 1937, watched her taken to jail by the Japanese and then disappear."

"All the islanders," the report continued, "believe Miss Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, were executed out of sight of the local population. The Japanese were determined that no American would ever tell the world they were fortifying the Island of Saipan."

Saipan was one of the battlegrounds of World War II.

"One native said he had been invited to witness the hanging of a white woman," added the report. "He refused to go."

Miss Earhart's disappearance at the age of 39 sent a wave of shock and disbelief around the world. A task force of 3,000 men, 10 ships and 100 planes swept the Pacific, to no avail.

Last May the San Mateo, Calif., Times quoted a woman who lived on Saipan as a child as saying she recognized pictures of Miss Earhart as the American pilot she saw taken into custody by the Japanese.

The woman, Josephine Blanco Akiyama, now a resident of San Mateo, was reported as saying a member of the Japanese secret police later told her the flier had been shot.

CBS sent a news team of its own, plus a Times reporter, to investigate.

The network said the team, diving into the waters of the bay opposite the old Japanese naval base, found the wreckage of a plane.

A generator was shown in San Francisco Friday. Paul Mantz, the flier who outfitted Miss Earhart's craft, said it looked like the one he had installed. He planned to check his work number records to make sure.

In Tokyo, a former admiral of the Imperial Naval General Staff termed the execution reports incredible. Shigeyoshi Inouye, in charge of the Naval Affairs bureau in 1937, denied any knowledge of the subject.

Dusty Mystery Bundle Found; Was Arson Intended in 1910?

By PAUL SMALLWOOD
HERALD STAFF WRITER

Was an arsonist at work here 50 years ago?

Fire Chief Talmer Wise pondered the question this week after a carefully laid plan to set a house on fire was discovered by chance several days ago.

The plot was uncovered in a house at 538 S. Scioto St., now undergoing extensive remodeling and repair. Careful examination of the findings showed that some person or persons wanted the home to be burned.

Further study indicated the burning attempt transpired about 1910. The guilty party used all the cunning and ingenuity of a veteran arsonist.

THE weird and mysterious plan came to light a few days ago when

Jay Welsh, new owner of the home, started remodeling and repair work. By accident, workers came across a bundle of tied papers which included kitchen matches and what appeared to be either cake or cookies.

Chief Wise said it is his guess the person placing the cache intended for rats to know on the cookies or cake and eventually strike one of the matches which in turn would light the bundled paper.

Wise and Welsh said the cleverly devised "torch" was found under an upstairs floor. They said a floorboard had been sawed out, then carefully placed back in position.

One of the newspapers, Western Magazine, found with the papers bore an 1884 date.

The bundle of papers, magazine, matches, food, and all were neatly tied with a strand of thin gauge wire. Wise said there was about a handful of old style matches.

Why was this plan devised? Wise still is pondering the mystery. There is no record available here to determine the owner of the home in 1910 or who lived there at that date.

THE fire chief said it is possible a renter might have become disturbed because he had to move. He said collection of insurance could have been another motive.

Finders of the bundled papers at first thought it was a hidden treasure. It didn't take them long to figure out the true intent.

Chief Wise said it has not been determined whether or not rats will know on matches to the extent they will be ignited. According to the chief, some sources say it can happen and some say it can't. In any event, Wise said rats must not have inhabited the S. Scioto St. home in 1910. "If they were there, they didn't take the bait," he remarked.

Atlas Missile Test Fires OK

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force successfully fired an inertially guided Atlas missile on a 5,000-mile test flight down the Atlantic missile range early today.

Project officials reported the powerful 83-foot rocket achieved all test objectives in boosting its re-entry body to a patch of water in the South Atlantic.

The announcement said "Primary objectives were to determine performance of the missile during the operation of its all-inertial guidance system and to assess the missile's ability to receive and react to the steering commands."

The inertial guidance test was the second in a series aimed at developing the Atlas for the ultimate, quick-retaliation goal for which it is designed.

Local Wheat Crop Second in State

BY GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

The harvest of Pickaway County's 40,200 acres of wheat has just begun. Only one other county in Ohio is producing more wheat this year than Pickaway. This county is Seneca with 41,400 acres of wheat.

The wheat harvest in Pickaway County will return to the rural farmer at least 10 per cent of the total sale of all agriculture products, or $1,60,000 plus that wheat which is fed to and marketed through livestock which amounts to several thousand dollars.

This spring has been a desirable season for fungus and bacterial diseases that attack wheat, but the crop seems to have withstood the attack in relatively good shape. The county wheat crop should average 26 bushels per acre. This will result in a total harvest of 1,045,200 bushels of wheat. The present market price of wheat is $1.66 per bushel.

Ask the man on Main St. and he likely will say the government sets the price of wheat. This idea is common on many streets throughout Ohio. In view of this prevailing opinion, it is rather startling to find that wheat prices in December, 1951, were 48 per cent higher than those in December, 1958.

PRICE supports in Ohio also were higher, but only 12 per cent higher. One should not get the idea that price supports have no effect, for they certainly do.

This raises the question, "Why do farmers sell wheat for a price that yields a smaller income than the net income obtainable by putting the wheat under price support? The answer to this is simple.

Farmers grow a large amount of wheat that is not in compliance with acreage allotments and, therefore, are not eligible for price supports. In 1956, a total of 40 per cent of the Ohio wheat acreage was not in compliance with acreage allotments.

Also in that year, 34 per cent of the national wheat acreage was not grown in compliance. This means that farmers not in compliance sell at a price which is determined by the free supply and demand.

Ohio's wheat prices, then, are set as they always have been, based on supply and demand. Since the market has been operated in the presence of price supports, the free supply is reduced; and to this extent, prices are higher than they would be in a given year in the absence of supports.

The method of setting prices of wheat is a highly complicated one. Basically, however, there are several persons or firms who want to buy Ohio wheat to make cookies, cakes, donuts, breakfast foods, snacks and flour paste.

THERE IS not a surplus of this type wheat. At the other end, there are the many wheat producers who want to sell wheat. Naturally, the buyers want to buy at as low a price as possible and the sellers want to sell at as high a price as possible. The buyers are free to buy their wheat in any part of Ohio or any state.

They will purchase it wherever they can in order to get the kind

Fireblight Hits Apple Trees Here

By George Hamrick
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Several local people have bought specimens of apple tree twigs to the office that are dead. As you ride around the county you can observe that apple trees are spotted with dead branches. This condition is called "fireblight".

"Fireblight" is a bacterial disease affecting the pome fruits — apples, pears, and quinces. It results in a blight of blossoms, twigs, and branches, and in the formation of cankers on the large limbs and trunks of affected trees.

Young apple and pear trees are frequently killed by "fireblight". Until recently no satisfactory control for "fireblight" has been available. Apple varieties may vary greatly in susceptibility to "fireblight", although no variety is completely immune. Jonathan is perhaps the most susceptible of the widely grown varieties.

Experiments performed during the past several years have shown that "fireblight" can be prevented by timely "in bloom" sprays of the antibiotic streptomycin. These sprays should be applied when the first blossoms are opening and the second application should be made at full bloom and the third application should be made at the petal fall stage.

Some growing seasons are especially favorable for the spread of the "fireblight" bacterium, and this year seems to be considered a favorable year. It is too late to make a streptomycin application this year. These dead branches should be removed from the tree as they appear and they should be burned. The pruning cuts should be made well back of the dead branches.

Further information may be secured by contacting the County Extension Office at 159 1/2 E. Main St. in Circleville, or calling GR 4-6828.

4-H Health Youths Named

Each year the county holds a 4-H health contest to select participants for the state health contest. Each county in the state has the privilege of sending one boy and one girl to participate in the state contest which is held at the State Fair each year.

In Pickaway County, each 4-H club attempts to select one outstanding individual to represent the club in the county contest. Each applicant must then submit to the Agricultural Extension Office a personal health record, which gives information on his or her health from birth to present.

The contestants were interviewed on June 27, by the county extension staff and the 10 finalists, five boys and five girls, were selected.

They are Sharon Sharrett, Nancy Huffman, Peggy Clark, Jo Hunsinger, Lynn Noecker, Ned Musselman, Robert Bower, Darrell Wiscup, Charles Frank and Ralph England.

Hogs on Concrete May Be Profitable

By George Hamrick
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Raising hogs from birth to market on concrete and in confinement is being practiced on many of our farms. By switching to this type of operation, many farmers feel that they can increase herd size, reduce labor and feed more efficiently.

This type operation can and usually does represent a sizable capital outlay for construction. These costs can vary depending on whether present facilities can be converted or whether a complete new plan must be made. The more expensive layouts can cost as much as $20 per initial hog or can be reduced to a more reasonable $10 per initial hog with careful planning.

If your plans indicate that you are going to install a confinement swine feeding operation, you should give primary consideration to your building exposure. A building for fattening hogs should, in all cases, face the east.

Your second concern will be to determine the size of your structure. Some minimum requirements are: A 75 pound pig should have 3 square feet of sleeping space, 5 square feet of concrete lot. You'll need one foot of linear feed space for 4 pigs or one hole per 4 pigs in a standard feeder.

When the pigs reach 75 to 125 pounds, they will require 4 square feet of sleeping space, 6 square feet of concrete lot, and will remain at 4 pigs per hole in the feeder. As the hogs reach 125 pounds to market, they will require 6 square feet of sleeping space, 8 square feet of concrete lot, and they will remain at 4 hogs per hole in the feeder.

MANY FARMERS move their pigs to larger lots as they gain weight, thus allowing more space. But research indicates that as hogs are moved to different lots during the fattening period they sometimes reduce their efficiency. This is attributed to the hogs' inability to adjust to the change rapidly enough.

Farmers can receive free assistance from the County Extension Office and from the State Extension Engineer on construction or reconstruction problems. This service can be received by contacting the Extension Office at 159 1/2 East Main Street, Circleville, or by calling GR 4-5828.

FACE FLY CONTROL

Indiana entomologists tell us that backrubbers give beef cattle considerable relief from face fly. Important: Install the backrubber in a pasture where there is no shade. (If there is shade, cattle will bunch there and will not use the backrubber.)

Use a solution containing 5 per cent DDT, or 5 per cent toxaphene, or 5 per cent methoxychlor. To make 5 quarts of backrubber solution, mix 1 pint of 50 per cent DDT, plus 1 quart of 25 per cent EC DDT, (or 1 quart of 25 per cent EC methoxychlor, or 1 pint of 50 per cent EC toxaphene), plus enough No. 2 fuel oil, or kerosene, to make up the 5 quarts. Commercial preparations are also good. Renew insecticide weekly.

CORN BORER

Sweet corn growers should begin spraying when the first injury appears. Apply DDT at the rate of 1 1/2 pounds actual per acre. Four applications at five day intervals are necessary. DDT residue on corn stalks, leaves, husks and cannerly waste makes them unfit to be fed to dairy or meat animals. Parasites and resistant varieties should hold corn borer damage to a low level on field corn.

Soap and Water Bad Medicine For Cleaning Wooden Floors

By Kileen K. Ewing
Associate County Extension Agent

Don't use the stand-by team of soap and water on beautiful wood floors. The clue to wood floor care is to dry clean floors with a polishing wax that has a solvent base says Lois Deneke, Extension Home Management Specialist at The Ohio State University.

Manufacturers make these in both liquid and paste form. The liquid polishing waxes do a two-in-one job. The solvent loosens the dirt and acts as a cleaning agent. In addition, it softens the dry wax already on the floor and redistributes it along with the wax being applied.

The paste form contains the same type waxes but a smaller amount of solvent. With present day equipment, the liquid polishing waxes are easier to use.

There is more solvent in the liquid form, so it should be used for cleaning lightly soiled wood floors. Read the directions on the label to see if instructions say the product is intended for use on wood and linoleum floors.

Some manufacturers make a floor cleaner in addition to their paste and liquid polishing wax. This also has a solvent base which has an even greater amount of solvent than the liquid polishing wax.

The cleaner will leave a very thin coating of wax, because its primary purpose is to clean. These cleaners are good to use on floors that have become heavily soiled.

MISS DENEKE points out that these waxes need polishing so they must be rubbed or buffed to a shine.

The liquid polishing waxes usually are combustible mixtures, so keep them away from flame or open fire.

Pickaway County Sheep Producer Likes Ashville Man's New Program

J. Wright Noecker, Route 1, Ashville, last week praised the Ohio Production Testing Program for sheep, which was originated by the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service and purebred livestock breeders.

William W. Wharton, Ashville, was appointed director of the statewide program. He visited several states to study their beef and sheep testing programs. He also sought the advice of Ohio breed associations in setting up this relatively new program.

Noecker, a prominent Walnut Twp. farmer, is a well-known and long-time raiser of sheep. He presently has a flock of nearly 325 head, which includes 130 commercial ewes, 14 purebred Suffolk ewes and five rams.

Noecker entered the sheep testing program last year and already is seeing its benefits. He said he was able, this year, to cull unproductive ewes that didn't have lambs this spring and did poorly last year.

From a technically compiled index, Noecker was able to select the best ewes of his flock for breeding, plus picking out some of this year's newborn flock for further breeding.

THE PURPOSE of sheep testing is not a contest. Its sole purpose is to help the purebred and the commercial sheep raiser locate the best producing ewes and rams in his flock.

Entrance into the program is quite simple. Enrollment is made through the County Extension Agent, which in Pickaway County is George Hamrick. Or a sheep raiser may enroll by direct contact with the Agricultural Extension Service and the Department of Animal Science, Ohio State University, Columbus.

In order to begin a production testing program, each ewe and her lamb or lambs must be identified by a simple, inexpensive numbered metal ear tag.

Birth dates of lambs may be kept on wall charts in a barn, listing the number of the ewe, the date the lambs were born and their ear tag identification.

Wool weights need to be secured on each ewe at shearing time. A household or dairy scale can be used for this purpose and weights may be written down on a paper opposite the ewe's number.

Lamb production can be measured by obtaining weaning weights of the lambs. The time to take these weights may vary, but should cover approximately the same length of time each year. Usually weights are taken at 120 days of age.

To make production figures of lambs and wool easy to use a tending time, it is desirable to calculate an index which combines both wool and lamb into one figure.

It is reached by weighing lambs as near 120 days as possible. The weights are computed at OSU by using growth rate adjustment figures for the breed. There are some 25 x 330 different sheep breeds.

Also considered as twinning ability, in which each ewe will receive additional credit for having multiple births. Sex of lambs is taken into consideration as well as age of ewes.

Ewe production cards are furnished free of charge by the Animal Science Extension Department. One card is needed for each ewe.

Flock owners will be assisted by local extension agents or Animal Science Extension agents. It is the responsibility of the flock owner to record needed information.

Direct supervision of weighing will be provided when requested. All information compiled will be kept strictly confidential. Advice also is available in regards to breeding, management and selection problems connected with the sheep enterprise.

THIS PROGRAM alone with beef testing was started 2½ years ago, directed by county native, Wharton. The Ashville resident is a graduate of Walnut Twp. High School and OSU. He was extension agent in Noecker and Joe Peters are the only two county sheep raisers in the testing program, established 2½ years ago by the Ohio Extension Service. (Staff Photo)

CHECKING RESULTS — Seen above are J. Wright Noecker, William W. Wharton and Ed Taylor looking over the shoulder of George Hamrick, checking the results of the day's sheep weighing. Wyandot County for eight years before taking over this project.

Wharton married the former Martha Heffner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Heffner, Route 2, Ashville. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Wharton, Route 2, Ashville.

Most farm experts agree that a successful sheep raiser is a good manager. Three things make a good sheep raiser.

They are good fences, good disease and insect control and knowledge of the animal. Sheep take more personal observation and attention than any other livestock.

Noecker said he is lucky that he hasn't been bothered by dogs. His sheep are early breeders, typical of the Suffolk breed. Lambs usually are born in February, March or April.

The earliest lambs are ready for market in six to eight months. Early lambs normally sell at a higher price due to the limited supply.

THE LATER the summer grows, the lower the sheep price becomes, which is why Noecker prefers the earlier breeding sheep. Average market weight for sheep is 100 to 110 lbs.

Noecker feels that the later breeding sheep makes it more difficult to finish (fatten up) because they don't like the hot weather months of July or August.

Noecker farms 220 acres, divided between two farms. He figures 60 acres of pasture and 1,500 bales of hay will feed his flock of 325, plus supplement.

Wharton said a sheep raiser should be able to raise seven ewes and her progeny on the production of an acre of land. Beef cattle take one acre per cow.

Many farmers feel there is more money in sheep than in dairy. Asked why more county farmers don't raise sheep, Wharton said because sheep are harder to raise.

Sheep should be rotated from pasture every two to three weeks to prevent disease, which comes from the soil. Three to five pastures should be available. Every season sheep are drenched in "phenothiazine", an insecticide that works internally.

THERE ARE many quirks to sheep raising. As the old saying goes, "Lambs lying down are dead".

Or as Noecker puts it, "lambs are born with the determination to die as soon as possible". Lambing is the busiest time of the year. Noecker will stay with a ewe during birth to bathe the newborn lamb and help it adjust to its first hours on earth.

There are 75 flocks in the sheep testing program throughout the state. Noecker and Joseph Peters, Route 1, Ashville, are the only two from this county.

To breed his flock of 150 ewes, Noecker has five rams. He usually retains producing rams and ewes from four to five years before trading or selling them.

By virtue of this program, Noecker may now check his own flock for the best producers, instead of being forced to buy good rams and ewes on the open market.

In addition to raising sheep, which is his primary occupation, Noecker has 60 head of cattle and raises wheat and some soybeans for market.

THE BALANCE of his land is used to grow the necessary corn and alfalfa for his livestock. His wife, the former Helen Baker, teaches the seventh grade at Walnut Twp. School.

They have four children. The eldest daughter, Mary Ann, is a graduate of Capital University and is teaching in Columbus. His only son John, is studying agriculture at OSU. Two other daughters, Norma and Joy, are attending high school at Walnut and show sheep in 4-H competition.

County and State extension officials urge other sheep raisers to enter this program to better their sheep production, which in turn will increase their already too narrow profits.

Reds Make U.S. Spying Look Puny

After looking over the "black book" of Soviet spy activities in the United States, which was compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Senate investigators who delved into the U-2 incident said America's espionage is insignificant.

This is something virtually everybody had known, but the black book spells it out in agonizing detail. It devotes 63 pages to activities in the U. S. of Soviet agents over three decades.

Although Khrushchev threw a catfit over U-2 aerial photographs, Soviet agents have dozens of aerial photographs of major U. S. cities and vital areas. Some of them were obtained legally through commercial channels. But after the State Department, in 1955, placed restrictions on what data the Soviet operatives could obtain in the U. S., the Russians began trying to get U. S. citizens to sell them the type of aerial photographs they wanted.

At a secret meeting in Scarsdale, N. Y., in 1958, aerial maps of New York City and Chicago were turned over to Soviet agents. The reds attempted to buy photographs of large West Coast cities and their areas before that particular form of espionage was broken up.

Aerial photographs are only one phase of Soviet intelligence activities in this country. The communists recruited Americans as agents to take spy roles in industry and elsewhere.

The U-2 operation was puny compared to Moscow spying. Washington should move promptly to equate its information about Russia with what the reds know about the U. S.

Art Forms Reversing Trends

A most striking development the past few weeks in the field of the arts has been a growing outcry against the prevailing gloom of evil and corruption in plays, books and movies. For almost the first time friends and defenders of the arts are expressing weariness with this vein of portrayal, voicing the thoughts that have been considered unenlightened and philistine when expressed by others in the past.

For instance, critic Marya Mannes of New York said recently: "During the course of the theater season, the constant playgoer has kept strange company indeed. Only a psychiatrist or a nurse in a mental institution would have spent several hours of so in the company of addicts, perverts, sadists, hysterics, bums, delinquents and others afflicted in mind and body."

Similar blasts have been directed against some of the new novels for being dreary recitations of sin, violence, rape, etc. It isn't that these people are becoming puritanical. Realism done for a worthwhile purpose—and not merely to shock—is useful.

But these portrayals have strayed so far from the world in which most persons live that they have no more relevance than science-fiction, for example.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first half of 1960 is over. It was busy. But what does it add up to?

In foreign affairs it is too soon to say whether these past six months added up to an American disaster or just an unpleasant interlude.

At home living costs reached an all-time high but there were no sensations as the presidential contest picked up speed.

As the new year began there was renewed hope that — internationally — things might get better.

The United States, Britain, France and Russia were bustling and hustling, getting ready for the summit conference May 16 in Paris.

Before February ended France had joined the atomic club of the other Big Three by having its first atomic explosion.

There was a new twist abroad, one which may set the pattern for more serious events in the future.

Rioting students in Korea forced out high-handed President Syngman Rhee; and in Turkey rioting students forced out the dictatorship of President Adnan Menderes.

Then the egg broke.

The American U2 spy plane was brought down over Russia with an unprecedented roar from Premier Nikita Khrushchev who insulted and belittled President Eisenhower, wrecked the summit conference and canceled Eisenhower's trip to Moscow.

It is too soon to know whether relations have been terribly damaged or just badly bruised.

The cold war resumed frigidly. Khrushchev talked of waiting until Eisenhower's successor is elected to resume trying to do business with the United States.

Meanwhile, Eisenhower, carrying out an Asian trip arranged before the summit crackup, ran headlong into another embarrassment.

The Japanese government, fearing for his safety, yielded to the protests of rioters against both the President's visit to Tokyo and the new American-Japanese defense pact.

It called off Eisenhower's visit to Japan.

Eisenhower came home and, just as he did after the summit collapse, glossed over the unpleasantness and its implications, ignored his critics, and didn't seem to think the view was gloomy.

Writer Ho-Hums at Sports

By George Sokolsky

Unaccustomed as I am to the great outdoors life, I thought that I would go to a baseball game and a trotting race and a prize fight.

The baseball game was most amusing. I went with Jim Farley, the distinguished Democrat, and he told me what was going on in the Democratic Party, which spiced the ball game, that I am told, was an extraordinarily good one.

The trotting race, I witnessed from indoors. The trotters were outside, running hither and yon, but we sat behind windows, having our dinner, while the trotters trotted. They seemed to be doing very nicely. I bet on each race and came out $23 ahead, which means that I am now an expert in picking horses.

The way I picked them was by going along with certain numbers which sometimes came out well and other times badly. I won half a daily double, but I was told that half was equal to nothing, which denies the old adage that half a loaf is better than none.

The fight that I went to was ballyhooed as the greatest. I had gone to a prize fight once before and had a ringside seat which seemed a mile from the ring — so I saw nothing and have little memory of the ordeal.

This Johansson - Patterson fight started in the Stork Club where were gathered a multitude of politicians, lawyers, journalists and beautiful women. It was a pre-fight celebration. For me, it was the best part of the evening as I saw many friends, kissed politely several delightful girls, saw the philosopher, Max Lerner, freshly returned from India, watched Roy Cohn act as host in his new role of fight promoter, and saw William Fugazy wear a pink dinner jacket and a scalloped dress shirt.

Then we drove up to the Polo Grounds where the Giants used to play ball. Well, to get from the Stork Club to the Polo Grounds in New York, even on a busy day, is not much of a chore, but this fight night was something different. The cars were stacked up for a mile or so and I thought we would never make it, despite the fact that I drove in a car marked "official." When we came across a rare traffic cop, he could not read that sign or was a Jeffersonian, believing that all men are equal.

When we finally reached the Polo Grounds, we found that the aforesaid Jeffersonian doctrine was still prevalent, for the gatesmen let in those who had and those who had not tickets. We all went in together.

A great argument has developed over this doctrine of equality. Bill Fugazy maintaining that if a man paid for his seat, he was entitled to it, but if he did not pay, he should not be permitted to enter. Police Commissioner Kennedy maintained that a fight is a private enterprise and the entrepreneur should spend his money to see that the gates are properly manned. Whichever side of this controversy prevails, the disorder at the gates was a sight to behold.

Once we got in, it was something of a chore to find the proper seat, the ushers not being familiar with the layout. Also, it was being whispered that the ushers performed no service unless properly tipped which was a new device for getting money without paying income tax. I know that more persons sat in my $100 row than there were seats for.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

ONE OF THE colorful figures in the gold-rush days in Alaska was "Soapy" Smith; a promoter with an amazing gift of gab. His nickname derives from his trick of wrapping (or seeming to wrap) $10 bills around cakes of soap and selling them to suckers on street corners for 50 cents apiece. Occasionally a customer would get the cake wrapped in the ten spot—but it always was the same customer: "Soapy's" trusted "shill."

In Skagway the telephone office took and received wires for $5 apiece. It also wired funds home for miners who had struck it rich. Unfortunately, the nearest actual wire to Skagway was 600 miles away. The office was one of "Soapy's" enterprises. He also ran a medical center. Patients were examined for a nominal fee—but when they emerged from the office, their clothes and valuables were gone. Their kicks to the sheriff were not fruitful because "Soapy" was also the sheriff.

"Soapy" came to a fitting end—shot full of holes by an irate husband. He died with his boots off.

How To Rouse a Drunk

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Age-old advice for anyone in an alcoholic stupor has been to let him sleep it off.

We do, however, have quicker ways of rousing such an individual. One way is to give an intravenous injection of methylphenidate.

When such an injection is advisable, we usually begin with 20 to 30 mg. Within three to ten minutes, the patient probably will awaken suddenly and become more alert and more responsive. Most likely he will feel more sober.

The condition will improve slowly in most cases. Sometimes, however, another injection of 20 to 30 mg. may be necessary about half an hour after the first shot.

Tests with the drug thus far indicate that it doesn't always work. An occasional patient has relapsed into a depressed state after 15 minutes or so.

As far as I know, the use of methylphenidate on agitated persons has been extremely limited. In two cases that I know of, both patients became more aggressive and pugnacious.

Most persons will be able to walk without aid following methylphenidate treatment. Some may react appropriately, but will have some difficulty in walking and speaking.

Some side effects are likely to occur, but seldom are they apt to be serious. The blood pressure may increase or decrease slightly. Nausea, vomiting, vertigo and anxiety might last for two or three minutes, but that's all.

Insulin and glucose also have been used to relieve alcoholic stupor. Such treatment of course must be used only in a hospital.

Sometimes a person is thought to be in an alcoholic stupor when the real cause of the trouble lies somewhere else. Alcohol on the breath is not proof of alcoholism.

A diabetic coma can result in a similar — appearing stupor. So might a skull fracture, thrombosis or a tumor.

Carbon monoxide, rather than alcohol, might be the source of the problem.

All such possibilities must be ruled out before treatment to rouse

If Kennedy Drive Fails, Where Do Ohio Dems Go?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio delegates to the Democratic National Convention could ride off in several directions if U.S. Sen. John F. Kennedy fails to get enough horses hitched to his early bandwagon.

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, Ohio favorite son professes to see ample signs of a quick presidential nomination for the Massachusetts senator at the convention opening July 11 in Los Angeles.

But despite Kennedy's long lead, some Ohio delegates figure he may be unable to corral the necessary 761 votes for nomination on the first ballot. Indications of Kennedy support cresting short of nomination could send delegates, who love a winner, scurrying for other bandwagons.

Party leaders term a Kennedy collapse unlikely. But they can't afford to overlook alternatives. So they concede there is considerable choice sentiment of Missouri among Ohioans. They think a handful of delegates might swing to Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and a few to Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the 1952 and 1956 nominee.

Ohio's 64-vote delegation, fifth strongest at the convention, is pledged to Kennedy through favorably disposed DiSalle controls 56 votes. Ray T. Miller of Cleveland, Cuyahoga County chairman, controls eight pledged to county engineer Albert S. Porter as a stand-in for Kennedy.

DiSalle, a delegate at - large, played an active role in the last two party conventions. Porter, who is not a delegate this year, was a delegate in 1952.

An early Kennedy stampede could provide the Ohio delegation with a repetition of its role at the convention four years ago in Chicago and prevent DiSalle from receiving an honorary first ballot nomination as favorite son.

At the 1956 convention, U.S. Sen. Frank J. Lausche, then governor and Ohio favorite son, released his delegates to vote for Stevenson on the first ballot when an early boom for the former Illinois governor developed.

Lausche, waiting at his hotel for lightning to strike, telephoned his decision to the convention hall after watching the swelling Stevenson parade on television. Two of his delegates had threatened to bolt and four others, who were unpledged, had declared for Stevenson.

DiSalle, ready to nominate Lausche, tore up his speech and later nominated U. S. Sen. Estes Kefauver for vice president.

If Kennedy falters, the Ohio delegation could find itself in somewhat the same situation as in 1952. The delegation that year was evenly divided between Kefauver and former U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkeley of Cleveland as the state organization's favorite son.

Stevenson sentiment forced Bulkeley to release his delegates and they scattered to six candidates. Kefauver delegates stayed put. On the third and final ballot, the Ohio vote stood 27 for Kefauver, 26 for Stevenson and one for Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia.

On the first ballot, the Ohio vote was 29½ for Kefauver, 13 for Stevenson, 7 for Russell, 2½ for Vice President Alben Barkley, and one each for Averell Harriman of New York, and Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma.

The second ballot lineup gave Kefauver 27½ votes, Stevenson 17½, Russell 8 and Harriman 1.

Ohio had 54 convention votes in 1952. District delegates had a full vote and at-large delegates elected statewide had a half vote apiece. The same voting designation prevailed in 1956, when Ohio had 58 convention votes, and will prevail this year for the 64-vote delegation.

Miller kept his Cleveland delegates in line for Russell at the 1952 convention on the three ballots. But as the swing to Stevenson became definite, he got them aboard that bandwagon by demanding a roll call to put them on record before the third ballot voting became official.

Friends of Miller said he threw early support to Russell out of gratitude for Russell's efforts on behalf of the late Gov. Al Smith of New York, an unsuccessful nominee for president in 1928. Miller was a Smith admirer.

In the 1932 convention that first nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt, a Miller group of delegates stayed with Smith again and missed the thrush of FDR. Former Gov. George White of Marietta, Ohio's favorite son, released his delegates to Roosevelt.

A leading Democrat asserted that White was in line for nomination as vice president that year, but lost out because of Miller.

This year Miller, an early Kennedy backer, broke with DiSalle and entered his own slate of delegate candidates in the primary election. Miller and one other candidate were elected at-large and seven others won in the four Cuyahoga County districts.

The Rev. Donald E. Mitchell will emphasize the theme adopted by the Ministers Association: "Freedom Under God". The time is come for all the people of this nation to "take a bearing" to determine how far "off course" we have drifted from the thing we mean when we repeat our salute to our flag and say: "One nation Under God". Let us get back "on course". Mr. Mitchell will read the Scripture from the Book of Acts, chapter 22, wherein Paul claims his freedom as a citizen of Rome.

First Baptist

The Sunday morning preaching service will begin at 10:30 a. m. In this service the pastor, the Rev. W. A. Barla, will bring a message entitled "A Sound Mind In An Insane Age".

The high pressure and terrific pace of the times have produced a generation of high-strung, tense, mentally exhausted people who subsist on an amazing degree on cold drinks, chewing gum, and aspirin tablets. It is a fact that Americans consumed four million pounds of aspirin tablets last year. In this era we are alarmed with the rising tide of mental sickness and insanity. Psychology has attempted to give the answer. This science of human behavior has given many helpful insights, but falls short of the real conflict. It does not see God, salvation, or the reality of the spirit world. The battle today is not one of flesh and blood, but one of the spirit.

Sunday school will begin at 9:30 a. m. The lesson is, "Men Who Speak for God." There are classes for all age groups.

In the evening Training Union begins at 6:30 p. m. and evening preaching service at 7:30 p. m.

Church of Christ

Sunday the Rev. Jack Rankin will preach the theme, "In Search Of Real Peace." Many leaders of the world have issued a threat to peace. Those who are fighting the cold war are directing their attention to the uncommitted nations. In spite of the tragic conditions of the world, there is peace—a peace that is found by those who have learned that "Christ is our peace."

How is your mind as it looks into the hours in front of you? Is yours a mind that has true peace. If we really believe that God has our interest at heart we can agree with the apostle Peter when he says, "Casting all your anxiety upon him, because he careth for you." (I Pet. 5:7). "In Christ" only can this peace be found.

The supreme sacrifice has been made to give peace to you. The Father gave His Son, and the Son gave His life. You have to make the next move in obedience to The Lord's commands before real peace will be yours.

THE INVITATION

Everyone recognizes the great Lady standing in New York harbor holding her flaming torch. She welcomes the tired, the poor, the homeless, to this land of freedom. She symbolizes hope.

Back of the Lady, back of the welcome, stands the Church. The words on the statue do not mention the Church, and many of us do not realize the role it plays, but the Church inspired the principles on which our nation was built. It is the spirit of Christianity which extends the welcome to our shores and makes our nation a haven.

On the anniversary of our independence, we are proud of our freedom and opportunity and hope.

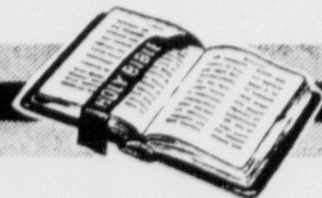

No statue with flaming torch stands at the door of the Church. But the Church is the real guardian of our heritage.

Strengthen your nation and yourself. Join the Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Telling Lies Is a Symptom

DEAR ABBY: What is wrong with a person who would rather lie than tell the truth? I thought Elsie was the most wonderful girl in the world. Then I started to catch her in all sorts of lies. I found out she was a housemaid instead of a stenographer like she said. She told me her parents were dead—I found out they were alive. She said she was born in one place—I learned she was born some place else.

When I catch her in a lie, she readily confesses and feels ashamed. I love this girl, Abby, and was considering marriage. But how can I marry her when I can't believe anything she says? Is lying a disease? Is it curable? UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Lying is not a "disease"—it is a symptom. People lie because they feel inferior, inadequate and insecure. If you love Elsie, try to help her. Lying is curable—only if the liar will make a sincere effort to help herself.

DEAR ABBY: I was married three weeks ago by our minister in his small chapel. I knew at the time that I was at least two months' pregnant, but I didn't advertise the fact. I am telling everybody that we were married three months ago by a Justice of the Peace in a small town near here. (I made it up because of the baby coming.) I want to know if anyone wanted to call up the Justice of the Peace in that small town and ask him if he really married us, would they be able to find out he didn't?

DEAR ABBY: My sister has two big, strong, healthy daughters, 16 and 20. They both live at home. The older one has a job. My sister's home is as beautiful as any magazine picture, but if you walked into the girls' bedroom you would get the shock of your life. It is as cluttered as a pigpen. Clothes piled everywhere. Petticoats standing all around. Shoes all over. Cosmetics and magazines enough to fill a store.

Dempsey Cool On Return Bout Idea

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson will never meet again, predicts former boxing great Jack Dempsey.

"Why should they?" queried Dempsey, who reigned as heavyweight champion of the world from 1919 to 1926. "Sure they have a contract for it, but it's time somebody else had a crack at the title."

When asked if he had any ideas as to whom Patterson should fight next, Dempsey answered: "They tell me Sonny Liston could lick both Patterson and Johansson. I don't know, I've never seen Sonny Liston fight. But, maybe he ought to get the chance."

Dempsey, who was in Pittsburgh Friday to boost sales of his biography, then launched an attack on boxing in general.

"I never had any return bout contracts," he said. "All they do is tie up championships and enable managers and promoters to maintain a monopoly while they shut out worthy contenders and eliminate competitive bidding for matches."

He added that boxing needs "men who know something about the business instead of uniformed politicians."

"The boxing situation is a sorry mess," he continued. "But he mess is more the making of interests on the outside than on the inside. The manner in which the Johansson fight was mishandled was a disgrace."

Golfers Need Duplication

Golfers in all classes have been greatly handicapped by confusing occasional success with consistent success.

Occasional success in making a particular shot, score or winning a tournament, is due partly to favorable playing conditions and mainly to sheer luck. Proof lies in the performer's repeated failures to duplicate his success at will.

Consistent success includes frequent and deliberate duplications of top performances. The different types of success likely to be enjoyed by any player are definitely indicated by the presence or absence of "Left-Side-Leadership" in his swing.

This presence or absence is clearly shown in the player's impact position. The whole left side of the body should be extended and firm with the left arm and club forming a straight line between the shoulder and ball.

As the left side functions so go the results.

American Capitalist Handed Lenin Peace Medal by Reds

PUGWASH, N. S. (AP) — An American millionaire and a Russian scientist shook hands Friday and wrote a new chapter in the history of this peaceful salt mining and lobster fishing community of 700 inhabitants.

The occasion was the ceremony presenting the Lenin Peace Prize to Cyrus Eaton, who was born here 77 years ago. He now lives near Cleveland, Ohio.

Three thousand people of Scottish descent met for the annual gathering of the clans and fishermen's regatta, highlighted by the peace prize ceremonies on Dominion Day, Canada's national holiday.

Physicist D. V. Skobel'tzyn, who headed the Russian delegation to the Geneva atom-for-peace conference in 1955, handed Eaton the shiny gold medal and a check for $25,000. The medal was pinned to the industrialist's jacket. Eaton said the check will be given to "the cause for peace."

The presentation took place on a platform in front of a sloping lawn a few hundred yards from Eaton's estate.

Eaton accepted the award with "warmest gratitude." He said "Russia's decision to give the award to an 'acknowledged apostle of capitalism from the United States was evidence of Russia's desire for peace."

The decision offers "a hopeful omen for brighter days ahead," said Eaton, who advocates closer ties and more trade between the communist and capitalist worlds.

The white-haired financier was chosen for the award by the 11-member International Lenin Peace Prize Committee on May 3.

Skobel'tzyn, a member of the committee, said Eaton had "fully earned the gratitude of mankind for tireless work for peace and prosperity of all people."

"By raising your voice against the forces of destruction and death you are continuing nobly the glorious traditions of America's finest leaders of the past," he said.

Arutunian, said Eaton and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev were "farm boys with two different destinies but joined together with the ideal of peace."

"The science of destruction has reached such staggering proportions that war must be branded absolutely absurd by reason of its own monstrosity," Eaton replied. "I devoutly believe in the possibility of peace with honor to all," he said.

At a news conference later in the day, Eaton said he was surprised that he was chosen for the award.
